Gembridge’s service was “agile, secure and cost-effective”, says Jhon Espinoza of Stirling, Australia-based GAIA Gems and Jewellery who purchased a rare 10.81-carat imperial topaz from Brazilian supplier Artouro & Gemas in June 2021. “It is common that overseas transactions have a double charge on the exchange rate and the bank fee which increases your import cost. I used my payment platform that minimises those charges and had no issues,” Jhon said.

“Gembridge was an agile, secure and cost-effective platform for the payment of the imperial topaz. “ It is very difficult to trade high quality gemstones during a pandemic, Jhon said. However, Gembridge provides a transparent way to really understand the quality of gemstones offered on the platform.

“The quality and presentation of gemstones can guide your choice and decisions,” Jhon said.

Asked to describe his experience of using Gembridge and dealing directly with Gembridge’s Brazil Ambassador Manuela Soares, director of Artouro & Gemas, he said, “If I can select two words, those would be VERY POSITIVE.

“The quality of gems from ArtOuro is outstanding and Manuela has also given me some good advice as an Ambassador.”
